To whom this might concern
Sir

Enclosed herewith you will find five coins of a very small value but I think they are interesting especially three of them as they are very old one dates back to 1718 while the other may be older & another is one of the first issued by England since 1814 when they took possession of the Island of Malta and the most recent ones the date is quite plane the interesting part about these coins is that they are still in use

Very truly Yours
David P. Jones

P. S.
Sir

This is to inform you that I was directed by Mr. Edward Robinson to send them to you as he could not accept them for the Metropolitan Museum as they don't collect coins as such but only for art
